Take Away Exercise: What Kind of Man Do You Need?

Using the table below, describe your need for protection, provision, and cultivation. We've provided examples below.

Your Needs	Protect	Provide	Cultivate
You understand the value of money and earnestly try to maintain a financially balanced life. However, you often find yourself in a financial rollercoaster, and generate income only when bills are due, the refrigerator is empty, or when you want to make a purchase. You sometimes have to borrow money or use a credit card for basic necessities.
You are the life of the party and are sympathetic to the needs of others. Although you are completely functional, you are prone to allowing your emotions to dictate your actions, and people often take advantage of your good nature.
You have a goal and know it connects with who you really are, but have trouble putting the pieces together to grow your vision. If you had the right person to keep you on track with goals and tasks, you know you could see more results than you are experiencing now.
